“ To Chris's family, I'm so sorry for your loss. My first memories of Chris were of him at his grandparents' house when he was maybe six or seven, entertaining us all by pouring his heart into a rendition of Put Your Hand In The Hand, following in the footsteps of Uncle Steve. Later, it was a joy to do some gigs with him - so much talent and versatility, and so enjoyable to be around. My condolences to you.

“ My sincere sympathies to Chris’s family and friends, in particular his mother, Patricia. I haven’t seen Chris since he was a very young boy and it’s clear from all the wonderful comments that I missed sharing a friendship with a very special person. By his photo it seems that he was a wonderful combination of his beloved father, Joe Turner and his treasured grandfather Clarence Lozon. I pray that their combined good qualities and loving nature carry on in his children, grandchildren and their children for many generations to come and that their presence and love brings Chris’s family and friends peace and comfort.
