

Dr. Margaret Brigham

March 24, 2022

With heavy hearts we announce the passing of my dear mother Dr. Margaret Arletta Brigham on Thursday, March 24, 2022 at the age of 72. She will be greatly missed by her son Spencer Shawano Brigham and her siblings Bernita Brigham-Jacobs (Alan), Eugene Brigham and the late Marian Brigham, Alice Brigham and Clarence Brigham. Aunt of Benjamin Brigham (Carly), Sean Hoogterp, Graham Hoogterp (Phyllicia) and great aunt of Vance Brigham, Talen Brigham, Benjamin Brigham-Kewayosh, Shaawnonoo Altiman, Wahwatessa Altiman, Zeebing Altiman. Margaret is the daughter of Simpson Lewis Brigham and Lorraine Jessie Tooshkenig.

Dr. Margaret Brigham (Ojibwe) is from Walpole Island First Nation in southern Ontario. The oldest in a family of six children, she has a son of her own. Margaret's work includes experience as a classroom teacher, First Nation school principal, private sector consultant on diversity and equity issues, sociology professor and college administrator. She served on the City of Toronto Aboriginal Affairs Advisory Committee, and the Provincial Aboriginal Postsecondary Education Policy Working Group.

Dr. Brigham spoke on "Aboriginal Women in the Trades" at the Aboriginal Apprenticeship Board of Ontario Conference, Thunder Bay, Ontario. She was a conference presenter on a "Signature Pedagogy for Global Citizenship Education at the World Universities Forum, Rhodes, Greece. She has also presented workshops on the pre-existing gaps in college readiness among Indigenous students and workplace issues. Working with tribal groups in Canada and the U.S., she wrote and produced seven video case studies on "American Indian/Anglo Patterns of Difference".

Margaret taught preservice teacher education courses in Education and Society and Cross-Cultural Counseling at the University of Toronto. Graduate seminars included Indigenous Knowledge and Decolonization; Aboriginal Communication and Leadership; and Indigenous Women's Voices. She was also the Dean of Centennial College's Institute for Global Citizenship in Toronto. Most recently, her interest was in Indigenous Storytelling and she was writing a non-fiction book on the history of the Great Lakes Anishinaabe.

Dr. Margaret Brigham was a proud board member of the Rec4Youth charity—an organization empowering youth to make positive life change through sports and recreation activity in the Mississauga and surrounding area. For many years, she supported the good work carried out by director and long-time family friend, Joanna Williams. In meetings, her passion for getting youth both indigenous and non-indigenous up on their feet shone through. She contributed guidance on direction, culture, global citizenship, and was most recently working to establish resume-writing workshops featuring career inventory assessments. Her son Spencer Brigham currently serves as a youth board member. Donations are appreciated and can be found at the link below.

“ Oh boy. Wow, I feel very much behind the times on this. I was chatting with a former colleague from Centennial College, where Margaret worked for a period a number of years ago. We were discussing how much we enjoyed our time with her and what a kindred spirit she was. I approached Margaret when she was the dean of the equity department (or what ever it was called back then) about developing an Indigenous studies course. As a white person, I wasn't sure how she'd take my suggestion, but all I can say is she went out of her way to support my pursuit. She supplied me with topicalas from when she was a prof in Arizona. She was like my confident as I worked through the development of that course, which was the first time such a course had been developed at Centennial. And then she left, leaving a significant gap at the College. I am so sorry to have lost touch with her after she left. My condolences, as late as they are, are extended to her family. She was a brilliant mind, and a kind heart. The world needs more people like her.

“ Oh my goodness. I worked under Dr. Brigham for 3 years. She taught me so much. In stories, she taught me the ins and outs of working with merit and intent in environments that aren't always receptive to such upheaval. My heart is in sorrow only now learning of her passing. I've come to know this by looking her up in hopes of professional guidance and personal betterment. To her son, Spencer, who I met only a couple of times, but who so clearly lives his life with his mother's spirit: my condolences. This is shocking and absolutely disheartening news. The world was a better place with Dr. Margaret Brigham in it. Love to her family and friends.

“ Margaret was my Dad's, Vernon Bellecourt's girlfriend in the early 1970's. I was a young teenage girl then. I remember she was so smart and beautiful. I've been thinking of her lately. Denise Bellecourt Levy

“ Although our families grew apart over the years, I have memories of summer days spent on Walpole Island as a child. Enjoying the company of our grandma Highfield at the cottage and playing with Margaret and her siblings. She achieved so much in her life and touched so many. Her spirit soars.

“ Margaret Sprague (nee Brigham) is someone whom I'll always admire and respect for her achievements and abilities, as a gifted educator and bridge builder. She used her gifts to elevate people to their highest capabilities and opened many eyes to the things they could not see otherwise.. She lived her life in service to her people and gave their lives meaning and purpose. I impart my sincerest sympathies to her son, and to her family members. Your mama/sis left her mark on this world in this world as evidenced in the lives she touched, and she will continue on in this way. Baamaampii Margaret, I'll never forget you.

“ I met Margaret only recently, unfortunately. I worked with her as she has shared her knowledge and expertise with school administrators across the province of Ontario. She has made tremendous contributions to their learning. She was truly a kind and generous person. My sincere condolences.

“ Margaret touched the hearts and minds of many children and adults with her traditional storytelling. On behalf of the hundreds of students, teachers, principals, seniors and others who had the pleasure of experiencing Margaret's storytelling, I want to express our condolences to Margaret's family. We are grateful for the time we spent with Margaret.

“ In the Summer of 1978 Margaret and I came together to form the Walpole Island Post Secondary School Association. I was in Fanshawe College and she was in Grand valley State University in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Under that premise we successfully executed a fund raising effort to support United States Anishnawbe in a Nation Wide Trek to protest the US Governments efforts to extinguish North American Aboriginal Rights. That march was called "The Longest Walk". As I recall, our Band Council matched us monetarily. We became great lifelong friends. Tine.
