“ I was sorry to hear about Ing's Restaurant closing. I took my family in for supper one last time during the last days that it was open. It was a happy day and also a sad one because we knew it would be the last time we would be there. For me, Wallaceburg just is not the same without Kee and his restaurant. Kee and Barb were truly kind people. My mom started taking me to eat lunch at Ing's when I was only about 6 years old. I'm 50 now. We were treated so well there that we could walk right in the back door and through the kitchen and take our usual seats. I had the best milkshakes and burgers in the world there in my experience. The Chinese dishes were simply the best around. Through all my years growing up, through school, through college, having a family of my own, Ing's was a constant. I always knew that I could go back to Ing's any time I wanted and I always felt better when I did. Kee and Barb were always there and every time I came in, for more than 35 years, they always were nice and asked how things were going. Whenever I was picking up a takeout order, Kee always asked how everyone in my family was doing. I am very glad that I was eventually able to bring my wife and my kids to Ing's to eat and to meet Kee and Barb. I took great pride in telling my son "I used to come here when I was your age." Four generations of my family was treated with kindness and courtesy and friendship. I miss Kee and his family and I miss the restaurant. My best regards to a great family who made a great contribution and were such a positive influence on so many.

“ I was so saddened to hear of Kee's passing. I have a story for you. Our grandmother owned the Green Market on Duncan St. and one of my very best memories was going to Ings Grill after church on Sunday with my big sister. Way back in the 60's We'd often have cherry cokes and fries and worked our way up to fried rice, chicken balls and chop suey. When we we grew up and had children of our own we'd still go there and introduce them to some chinese yummys (other than fries and cherry cokes.) Kee and Barbara never forgot us, always treated us with respect, and always welcomed us and our off spring like old friends. They never forgot us, just as we'll never forget them. The black cat clock with the tail that swung back and forth always made me smile. As well as the lights that looked like little flowers or stars by each booth. I'm still looking for one like it. I can't tell you what an impression your dad and your Mom had on my life. I think of them often and am grateful to have known them. My deepest condolences go out to Barbara and the family. You were all just babies when I first went to Ing's Grill, but your parents are very, very special people who will live in the hearts of many of the residents of Wallaceburg, especially mine. “ Many Wallaceburg citizens have graced Ing's Grill over the years. Kee & Barbara ran a decent, consistant restaurant which endured largely unchanged over the years. Kee will certainly be missed.
