“ Morris and I started out as playground opponents. He picked on me until I blasted back then we were friends. I really miss those days at No. 1 school on the Island. We played "Running In" and ball at recess. I hasted to say that being one of the few "white" kids at the school I can never remember feeling odd and never picked on because of my blue eyes. I carry that action on in my own life because of that lesson taught on Walpole.
